Real Possibilities

Dear Sponsors,

The aging LGBTQ+ population faces serious and unique health problems due to historically unfair and cruel treatment, including the fearful possibility of returning back to the closet. Only through education and training can we improve lives, battle misconceptions, and facilitate greater communication.

EDUCARE will address the issues faced by LGBTQ+ older adults through its 1st annual Cultural Competency Symposium for professional and family caregivers. Our goal is to bridge the gap between patient and caregiver that the LGBTQ+ community often faces.

This event will give both a national and local understanding of what it means to be compassionate and culturally competent with a community who has been underserved and undernourished, as well guide the audience on how to create a professional, welcoming, and loving environment at work or at home for this population.

Keynote Speaker: Dr. Tim Johnston

Tim R. Johnston, PhD is the Senior Director of National Projects at SAGE. He oversees the SAGECare cultural competency-training program, the National Resource Center on LGBT Aging, key aspects of SAGE's housing initiative, SAGE's diversity and equity initiative, and national partnerships with other advocacy organizations.

The Symposium will offer 6.5 credit hours of continuing education for professionals and a certificate of completion for family caregivers.

Sponsors of this event will be promoted to over 5000 individuals on the web, social media and through sponsors and media partners.

Attendees are professional persons in caring roles: they are conscious consumers with significant purchasing power who support sponsors of their training. Your involvement with this event will cement your image as a customer-focused business. The Cultural Competency Symposium presents an opportunity to align your company with support and resources for your own employees, fostering a more caring and efficient workplace.

Limited Sponsorship opportunities are available. Please review the attached information for the benefits associated with each sponsorship level. We appreciate your support of the caregivers in our community.
